Carnival Spirit to Reign Supreme In 26th Annual Event Tomorrow

Cape Doped to Win

The carnival spirit will reign tomorrow night when the track and field teams of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association clash in the final competition of the twenty-sixth annual outdoor conference track and field meet.

This is the first time that the Bearcats have been hosts to the conference schools. Maryville lost its last turn when the new track was under construction. However, the athletic department of the College has vowed to make up their loss by staging a show second to none in the history of the meet. With the track in the best condition in several years and with a gala program planned, this vow should become reality.

Parade at 7 o'clock

The athletes of all six conference schools—Rolla, Warrensburg, Cape Girardeau, Springfield, Kirksville, and Maryville—will open the carnival with a parade around the track at 7 p.m. Also included in the parade

ASSEMBLY INSPIRATION!

A. H. Spence, Bethany, a student in the College, received a poetical expression while sitting in the Mother's Day assembly last Friday, and on the back of his assembly program wrote the following lines:

I am thinking of you, dear Mother-o-mine,
And your kind loving face I can see,
As it was in the long, long yesterday
When I stood, as a boy, at your knee.

Dear Mother-o-mine, tho' you're gone from me now,
And your face I no longer can see,
I know that o'er there on that "Beautiful Shore,"
You are watching and waiting for me.

ELEMENTARY DEPARTMENT

Cellophane for window panes and pine boards for the roof are the materials being used in building a greenhouse in the kindergarten room. Inside the greenhouse they have already built a sandbox and an aquarium. Outside they have planted a garden, artistically landscaped, having flowers around the edge and many kinds of vegetables inside.

The first graders are tearing down their barn as they have no animals.

Their chickens hatched before Easter and the ducks a week ago but the children have taken them home. Their time now is devoted to their spring planting.

The main interest of the second graders is the planting of their garden. In relation to their Dutch unit they have been making rag rugs.

Besides the interest being taken, in planting a garden, the Pioneer cabin will become a Mexican ranchhouse in a new unit, the study of Mexico.

The Stroller

Some people can't wait for school to let out and some can't wait for summer session to start. Guess it would be more interesting if certain teachers would hurry back to school.

The Prom surely turned out fine! Just ask Sue Brown or else look at that "perfectly gorgeous" sparkler she's wearing. Great life if you keep plugging along, eh, Sue and you DID act very peculiar all week long.

Oh, of course we don't dare mention it in this "collum," but it sure is lonely or something to spend five whole hours all by one's self with nothing but a pile of pretty clothes. I'll give you just ten guesses to find out who was so unlucky—no one knows.

What do you think? "Ginger" Lee spent a pleasant evening at the Prom, didn't she Maloy? Nice dance, too.

Why has "Junior" Miller changed his nickname so suddenly to "Mug-gin" Miller? She'll be glad to tell anyone who is interested, all about it.

And were "Duck" Dowell and Mary Harmon really coming back from a weiner roast the other day? How about it, "Duck?"

Speaking of that—what was Zuch and Hattie doing out to one fine evening last week?

Alice, according to our school reporter, is now in Wonder.

The same reporter asks us, Virginia Thomas tries to hy.

All of ye male students ha

ter make up with your dorm friend, because the Residence

Saturday night. See you there.

"Snow White" At Junior-Senior Prom

Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs ruled at the annual Junior-Senior Prom, held in the West Library on Saturday evening, May 7. The dance, with Ralph Yehle's orchestra playing, featured a floor show with collegiate talent, and began following the grand march.

The Promenade was led by Richard Shroud, Calhoun, president of the junior class and his guest, Ethel Hester, Mound City, and Robert Paul, Bedford, Ia., president of the senior class, and his guest, Margaret Wurster, Lenox, Iowa.

Those in the receiving line at the door of the library were Richard Shroud, Ethel Hester, Robert Paul, Margaret Wurster and Mr. M. W. Wilson, and his guest, Miss Marian Peterson.

The library was decorated with many colored streamers which formed a ceiling. Colored "Snow White" balloons were tied to the streamers and rested above the book cases so the dancers could read the part of the story of Snow White printed on the balloons. Large figures of the Dwarfs adorned the walls and Snow White, "in the spotlight," stood beside her castle which was surrounded by ferns and palms.

During the dance, the orchestra presented a floor show. Frances Keuker, St. Joseph, as Snow White, sang "One Song" and Marie Holding and Martha Friede, St. Joseph, presented as the wives of the Dwarfs, gave a tap duet. The orchestra members presented short sketches as the Dwarfs and Henry Swift, Grant City, "Happy," acted as master of ceremonies. Allan Bing, Maryville, sang the song, "I'm Wishing."

The guests of honor were Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Hake, Dr. Margaret Ruth Smith and guest, Mr. Roy Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Tad Reid, and Mr. M. W. Wilson, junior class business advisor, and his guest, Miss Marian Peterson.

Chaperons were Mr. and Mrs. Norvel Sayler, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Dorough, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Simons.

Miss Beulah Frerichs of Fairfax

FLYS TO SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA DANCE

Flying back to one's Alma Mater to attend a sorority dance would be included under the category of "thrills of a lifetime," for most graduates or former students of a college. Miss Mary Allen, a graduate of the College in the class of 1937 and an instructor in the Des Moines, Ia., public school system, had that thrill last Friday night when she came by airplane from the Iowa capital to Maryville in a cabin monoplane to attend the spring formal dance of her sorority, Sigma Sigma Sigma, at the Country Club.

Flying with her guest, Robert Hodgin, Maitland, and a doctor in that town who owns the plane, Miss Allen arrived in Maryville one hour and a half after leaving the Des Moines airport. The two men flew from the Missouri town to Des Moines to bring Miss Allen back to the dance.

"Everything went well," Hodgin told a representative of this newspaper last Friday night, "until we hit a storm near Bedford, Ia. At that place Mary began to get sick from the heaving of the ship."

Miss Allen evidently convalesced by the time she reached the Country Club, for she reported that she "enjoyed a splendid dance."

is the general chairman for the spring formal. She has appointed the following committees to aid her in making preparations for the occasion: decorations, Mary Frances Morrell, Mildred Yates, Margaret Hammond, Lorene Johnson; chaperons, Jean Bixler, Ethel Hester; music, Edwardena Harrison, Durine Riddle; dance programs, Betty McGee; publicity, June Kidwell.

Guests and chaperons are as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Sayler, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Simons, and Mr. and Mrs. Tad Reid, Dr. Margaret Ruth Smith and guest, Miss Mercedes Duncan and guest, and Miss Ruth Villars and guest. Varsity Villager representatives will be Gara Williams and guest, Sue Fleming and guest and Helen Leet and guest.

STAY ON THE WALKS

In the spring and fall seasons of the year, we students often become lax, to a certain degree, and are inclined to exert no more energy than is necessary. Consequently we tend toward taking short cuts whenever we can.

In two or three places on the campus, paths have been made by trespassers who have not felt the "urge" to use the walks. The campus, especially in the Spring, is a scene of beauty, and students should realize that in order to keep it beautiful the cooperation of the entire student body is needed.

Paths across the campus are indeed unsightly scenes. They detract immensely from the appearance of the campus, and are especially noticeable to the many strangers who visit the campus every week. Persons who may be admiring the beauty of the campus on one side of the road may glance to the other side and see unsightly paths stretched across the campus, and the entire scene is "spoiled" for them.

Sidewalks have been constructed on this campus for use of students and faculty and of visitors to the College. The faculty members and visitors use the walks; never the paths. Why cannot we students follow suit and use the WALKS instead of the paths? The use of any walk on the campus will not lose students a great amount of time, and it does so much good for the appearance of our school premises.

1938 TRACK CARNIVAL

Tomorrow the five colleges in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association will meet at the College for the 1938 conference track tournament. A big carnival is in store for sports lovers who will attend the meet in Maryville tomorrow on this institution's track and field.

Many athletes will gather here for competition tomorrow. Preliminaries are scheduled to be run off tomorrow morning, with the finals under the lights tomorrow night. The night performance should attract a large number of persons from every section of the state, and should be a show well worth seeing.

We shall have as our guests here tomorrow a large crowd of out-of-town persons, as well as Maryville residences. To all of them we should show the greatest amount of hospitality whenever the occasion arises. They will be our guests—let's show them we are glad they are with us; let's join with them in a friendly spirit.

A POPULAR, WELL-USED ROOM

The library has become one of the most popular and most-used rooms in the building. Since the opening of Short Course, the enrollment of the College has increased about 30% and the use of the library, it seems, about 50%. This added activity in the library has resulted in the need for the students to exercise more care in their movements and actions there. Mr. C. E. Wells, librarian, has issued this list of LIBRARY REGULATIONS:

The College library is open from 7:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. and from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. on all week days except Friday when it closes at 6:00 p.m. On Saturday the Library is open from 9:00 to 12:00 a.m. and from 1:00 to 6:00 p.m.

Fines are assessed for overdue books, at the rate of 5c per day for books taken from the stacks, and 10c per day for reserved books. Fines are payable any time after the books are returned. If the fine is not paid immediately in the Business Office, the fine keeps on accruing until it is paid. An overdue list will be posted each day on the bulletin board in the hall and a record kept at the charging desk.

Students are asked to write date due on cards and date-due slips, and not the date books are taken out. The date-due slip is for use of students as a reminder of the date books are due.

Students are asked to show the back of their books as they leave the library.

Students are asked to refrain from conversation and unnecessary noise in the library.

Men are asked to use the South section of the Library and women the North section.

By observing these regulations, the students will be able to get the most out of the Library and to make it possible for everyone to make use of the library as a place to study and not as a recreation center.

DON'T OVERWORK THE GOOD HORSE

Extra-curricular activities have increasingly become an important part of the school program. Educational leaders agree that if properly directed and carried out so that all students have an opportunity for expression, these activities can be of great help in the development of the individual personality. Now this question is being raised along the educational fronts: "Are the activities achieving that for which they were established? Are all students participating?"

It is only natural that a school or an organization desires to make a favorable impression in its environment. In an effort to make this impression an organization will call upon certain leaders to carry out its program. This is perfectly legitimate, but it often develops that this same person is carrying a heavy extra-curricular load with other organizations. At the same time the persons who most need this training in leadership are allowed to take a back seat.

Two things are needed if this is to be remedied: First, students must be conditioned as to what is the ideal curricular and extra-curricular load and advised to make their program within their limit. Secondly, teachers, sponsors, and club presidents should try to distribute the responsibilities ordinarily loaded on the shoulders of a capable few, among the remainder of the members.

CAMPUS COMMENT

Reminiscences of the recent Spring Contests were in the halls last Saturday when, despite the adverse weather conditions, several hundred rural school pupils came to the College to compete in the annual Nodaway County Achievement Day events.

Reading over the list of candidates for degrees which was published in this newspaper last week, and keeping up with the placements as announced each week by the committee on recommendations makes Ye Ed wonder where "the old gang" will be next year.

Her topic was "Professors to Parents." The text of her speech appears elsewhere in this newspaper.

The WRITERS' NOOK

Writing is an art. He who would express himself must find a medium. The painter must cultivate the art of painting, the musician must cultivate the art of music. He who would express himself in writing must cultivate the art of writing.

THE QUESTION

I have lain the long night through.
I have been cold.
The cold dawn comes;
There is no peace.

I have lain the long night through.
Cold reason asked,
"Would you map vows
That find eternity?"

I have lain the long night through.
The dawn is cold.
"Would you map vows...?"
There is no peace. —A. Sawyer

RARE DAY

To cleanse my mouth of bitter taste,
With whip and spur I haste
To ride along into a deep ravine,
And force my horse between Sharp canyon walls that were
A most forbidding look before.

With every sense alert,
A joy intense enough to hurt
Imparts a reckless attitude,
Because my spirit's nude
Of painful garments that it wore
Said, "Here's a place where I can soar
Restrained by naught,
On this rare day."

DREAMS

Dreams of gold and name
And charted course to fame,
Obscured by quivering lip,
Suppressed sob and drip
Of burning eyes, revealing fear
Of winter snow and reaching years
Ahead, my guiding star of dreams
Becomes a murmuring stream
Reflecting friendship's golden light,
More precious far than foolish flight
Toward realms in cold vast heights
Reserved for lonely satellites.

LOVE

Love,
Though you lose,
You leave the world
A priceless legacy:
Dante and Beatrice,
Tristram and Isolt,
Abelard and Heloise.
The very thought of these
Is like a fire that purifies,
When the world forgets
The pure wild ecstasy of love
It shall lose its soul.

—Alex Sawyer

SHADOWS

The other morning it happened that I was out before daylight. All was yet dark around me. From a light in the window of my home were streaming long rays that dispelled the gloom. As I walked on, I noticed that the shadows stretched far away ahead of me. The farther
I went from the light, the longer grew the shadows. I turned and went back toward the house. Now the shadows disappeared. Unless I looked back I saw nothing of them.
The path reached on bright and clear until I reached the light of home again.

Then I thought about the shadows—long and short. Along the way we meet with shadows and they trouble our hearts with their blackness. We have shadows of doubt of our friends; shadows of wonder that things happen to us as they do;
shadows of fear about the future of our lives. We would like to see the way before us all bright and free of hindrance in our progress toward success, and yet, before us stretch the shadows.

But I learned while walking in the early morning, that away from the light lie shadows long and deep;
toward the light, shadows flee, and worry us no more. Let us faces toward the light. We stumble through the world and wretched because of falling. Look where the shadow falling—then march toward light. —E. W.

I WILL FORGET THIS

If I look down
I see a mire of mud,
If I look up,
A dingy dome of sky.
Nature is hostile today,
Brooding and sullen;
I close my eyes to her mud
Her forlorn, dismal sky—
I will forget this day. —A. S.

FORBIDDEN

It was not meant that you love me,
You never should have
way,
It might have saved you
heartache,
And kept away each gray a day.

It was not meant that I shot
you,
I never should have known kiss.

It might have saved me
longing—
But, oh my dear, what joy
ent bliss! —Margaret

EYES

My eyes meet yours
And there I see—
A spark of hope; a kind of
I just must answer
With mine to you.
For in their depths
You'll read, "I do." —M.

LOST

Like a huge bird
From out a distant land.
You took my heart
And left it only on the sand. —M.

Miss DeLuce Exhibits Her Paintings Here

Indian and Ranch Life in the Great Southwest Are Portrayed In Display

TWO LANDSCAPES ARE SHOWN

An exhibit of original paintings by Miss Olive S. DeLuce, chairman of the art department of the College, was put on display Tuesday, May 10, in Recreation Hall. A tea in honor of Miss DeLuce was given in the Hall Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock. The paintings will be open to the public until May 25.

Most of the paintings, which are ten in number, were painted in the southwest part of the United States. Indian pueblos, a Mexican ranch house, and a mission church, characteristic of New Mexico and the neighboring country, are the chief subjects treated by Miss DeLuce in these pictures.

The paintings portray the sunlit, colorful scenes of Indian and ranch life, where the Indian women do the work while their husbands idle in the hot sun. The glamour and romance of this country when Cortez and his little band of followers first found it is glowing on the canvases in this exhibition.

The first painting in the series is of the Ranchos Mission, and is particularly impressive. The old church, standing alone on the prairie, lifts three white crosses against the deep azure sky.

The North Pueblo at Taos, New Mexico, furnishes subject matter for two more paintings. Miss DeLuce represents the ancient pueblo standing in the bright sunlight, with the figures of one or two Indian women working at their customary tasks on its terraces.

Two of the pictures are landscapes done in cool blues and greens. "Mountain" pictures one lone mountain with deep shadows in its ravines and a ranch house at its base. "Ranchos Valley" shows the picturesque beauty of the valley with its patchwork of fields edged with trees.

DANCE CLUB PRESENTS RECITAL LAST WEEK

Last Wednesday night in the auditorium the College Dance Club, under the direction of Miss Day Weems, presented their spring recital. The recital, a part of Music Festival Week, consisted of thirteen numbers which had been created by the girls in their regular Dance Club work.

The high spot of the evening came in the Primitive Dance when a number of College athletes deserted the gridiron, the court and the track to trip the light fantastic in the stamping rhythm of this dance of the Stone Age man.

The Egyptian dance proved to be a dance indicative of the sleek, sensual movements of the true Egyptian.

The Grecian dance, a dance of essentially graceful movements, was greatly enhanced by the beauty of the classic white costumes worn by the dancers.

The Roman dance was a more or less pantomimic sort of dance which portrayed the gladiatorial spirit of the Romans. In the movements of this dance, one of the dancers is vanquished and the other celebrates her conquest by a spirited victory dance.

The entry of the church into the dance slowed down the activity of the dance, and almost forbade any bodily movement. The Church dance represented different types of worship in its slow and stately steps.

The Court dance represented the stilted manner in which the dance was treated in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

The Scarf dance, belonging to no particular nation or period, is representative of the change which the great dancer, Isadora Duncan, wrought.

The Folk dance, representative of all folk dances of all countries, was a clever, pantomimic dance which represented the active life of the peasant.

The rise of the ballet in Russia had a great influence over the dance in all other countries. In the Ballet dance, in which Lucy Mae Benson, senior member of the Dance Club danced the solo part, the stiff, fixed, yet essentially graceful steps of the true ballet were used.

Another of the favorites of the evening was the Gay Nineties dance in which Bee Leeson and Lucy Mae Benson starred on a real tandem bicycle.

The World War, and the subsequent depression caused a change in the manners and the music of the times. This radical change was shown in the new manner of dancing called jazz.

The last dance of the evening was the Modern dance. This dance, indicative of the trend of today in interpretative dancing, also showed the advent of the machine into the lives of the modern people.

At the Theaters

AT THE TIVOLI

Tonight—Walter Connolly, John Howard, Jean Parker in "Penitentiary" Story of the "Big House."

5 days, starting Friday, matinee daily—Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Something new under the sun, is Snow White, for she is a character from a story book come to life in a very enchanting manner. This is the first successful feature-length colored cartoon to be a success. Walt Disney, has had Snow White in mind a long time and has spent a lot of time and money bringing her from the fairy story to the screen. The result, of course is a sensation. Snow White, although originally for children's entertainment, on the screen has become a drawing card to the banker, the baker, and the candle-stick maker.

The easiest way to understand this sudden interest in fairy-stories is to go see it yourself. No-one has been disappointed yet. It is interesting to note that Snow White is the biggest box office of the year, the real-live glamour girls and boys in Hollywood had better look to their laurels.

AT THE MISSOURI

Tonight—Maryville News Reel. Moving pictures of the people of Maryville, at the schools and around the square, will be shown as actually photographed by a movie camera. Also Gloria Stuart, Michael Whalen in "Island in the Sky."

Friday, Saturday, double feature—Bill Boyd in "Heart of Arizona," and Sally Eilers in "Lady Behave."

Saturday night 10:45 and Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, matinees Tuesday and Wednesday—Shirley Temple in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," with Randolph Scott, Jack Haley and Gloria Stuart.

Shirley Temple, one of Hollywood's top box-office attractions again has made a hit in her current show. As Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm she would win the heart of the meanest Scrooge on earth. She gives a rather modern or up-to-date version of "Rebecca," which includes hooking up a radio broadcasting outfitting on Sunnybrook Farm.

And there is quite a little swing music in the show which brings the antique farm up-to-the-minute. It is very good entertainment for both young and old.

Home Ec Group Make Inspection Trips to Kansas

Various Foods Places Are Visited By College Women; Use Bus Transportation

The home economics department sponsored a trip to Kansas City, Monday, May 9, in the College. The women left at an early hour with Miss Hettie M. Anthony in charge, arriving in Kansas City about 8:30 a.m.

The group first visited the National Biscuit Company where they saw the making of bakery products. They were allowed to taste the products and were given a box of cookies to bring home with them.

Wolferman's, at Armour and Main, was visited next where the group saw many unusual foods including rattlesnake steak. They served the decoration of cakes which were shown imported condiments and dishes in which to hold them.

The Municipal Market was visited next. This was most interesting and instructive with its array of vegetables, and fruits, fish and other foods.

Those who took the trip were Miss Hettie M. Anthony, chairman of the department of home economics, Miss June Cozine, home economics department, Miss May Anthony, Marjorie Eppard, Elizabeth Williams, Doris Austin, Rosemary Larken, Ruth Wray, Betty Nobles, Marjorie Farmer, Beverly McGinn, LaDonna Switzer, Edith Wilson, Irilene Rowe, Beulah Campbell, Dean and Lois Miller, Margaret Stafford, Mary Peck, Winifred Lightle, Iris Ebersole, Jaqueline Barnhouse, Agnes Kowitz and Helen Clark.

A group, with Miss Ruth Villard, Residence Hall dietitian, in charge, went to Kansas City on Thursday. This group included Louise Warner, Bernice Carr, Martha Sue Zimmerman, Crystal Cooper, Lena DeCarter, Evangeline Scott, Mary Worley, Dorothy Dalbey, Margaret Libbe, Jean Martine, Ruth Headley, Margaret Hammond, Mary Jeanette Anthony, Marian Burr, Nadeene Malone, Marian Martin, Hope Wilson, Virginia Bosch, Geraldine Bird, Martha Harmon, Allene Meyer, Gwyneth Parman and Thelma Pebley.

Glenna Louise Smith attended St. Joseph Junior College her freshman year, later transferring to Maryville. She will receive the B.S. degree in social science with minors in sociology and English.

Maurice Charles Smith attended Park College at Parkville after graduating from Oregon, Mo., high school. He will receive his B.S. degree at the end of the summer term. He is majoring in physics and minoring in mathematics.

John M. Zuchowski is at the foot of his class—alphabetically. He will shed the duties of student president when he receives his B.S. degree in physical education with minors in social science and English. Mr. Zuchowski is a graduate of Christian Brothers high school in St. Joseph.

Casual Fashions High-Lighted In Smart Summer Clothes

Laurie O'Sullivan, Metro-Gold-Mayer featured player, wears a good example of the casual clothes that fit so well into every summer wardrobe. This is a suit of two pieces of blue, the blue flannel having deep inverted pleats at front and back. The jacket is of chintz blue with a deep blue neck. The three buttons and patch pockets add to its smartness. With this suit Miss O'Sullivan wears a fitted beret and sweater of harmonizing colors.

In the circle at the top center, we catch a glimpse of the smart costume Vivien Leigh is wearing. The fitted yoke is on her long coat of tan serge, and the stitching is in heavy nigger brown silk. The coat is fastened with three rounded wood buckles in nigger brown. With it she wears a dress of nigger brown crepe, with neckline tied to the bow you see beneath her chin. To complete the ensemble, Miss Leigh wears a hat of cream felt with nigger brown stitching, and has gloves, handbag and shoes of nigger brown suede.

For traveling in the summer, Florence Rice, M-G-M actress, chose this dress of navy blue crepe with a cool sprinkle of white dots, sashed with a similar dotted silk in red and white. The high neckline and short sleeves are bound with white pique. The dress is equally smart worn with or without its bolero jacket.

At the right Irene Hervey, M-G-M featured player, is wearing a daring new color combination in a knitted swim suit. Deep blue and pale pink are combined in this halter top, skirtless suit designed for active swimmers.

There is no reason why every girl and woman can not be as smartly dressed as their favorite Hollywood stars. Local shops feature similar fashions at prices well within the range of even modest budgets. The secret of smartness is to so plan your wardrobe that everything goes well with everything else. Choose a basic color scheme, and color variations that harmonize or contrast pleasingly with it. And if you don't trust your own taste in this matter, have a color analysis made at your favorite store, and get a chart of the colors that are most becoming to you, and suggestions for combining them in smart ensembles. Watch the window displays and department displays in which costumes and appropriate accessories are shown together. That's a grand way to get smart ideas for your own wardrobe.

Many Guests Hear Dr. Dow Give Mothers' Day Address

is room with my mother and my 3-year old sister, listening to a lecture on taxation in Missouri by a man who was an authority on the question. Elizabeth had a pencil, and was unobtrusively making little sketches on a pad, when my mother, taking the pencil out of her hand, wrote on the paper, "Elizabeth, when this lecture is over, I shall expect you to tell me what it was about."

My quickly written answer was that we have long-since come to recognize as a typically Elizabethan response, "Mother, if you can't make anything out of it, how can you expect me to?"

Yours is the right, and so is ours, to expect of college student some evidence of growth, some signs of accomplishment in his intellectual processes, some show of precise and factual knowledge, for you know, as we know, that without a background of knowledge, without the acquisition of the tools of thinking, it matters little what agreeable or positive traits of personality he may possess, however glibly may come his expressed opinion, his thinking can have little import, his personality must be tissue thin, compared with what they might potentially have been.

Learning Not Easy

There is no easy road to learning. There are rocks which tear the flesh. There are steeples which beat the forehead with an agonizing sweat. There are barriers of seemingly inaccessible fact which must be tried and tried again before they can be scaled. But what of that?

Americans have a fine tradition of the importance and the dignity of work, so long as it is reckoned in terms of physical effort. They bear with courage and with fortitude the stresses and the strains of opening new country, of clearing land, of building homes, of the endless tasks of motherhood, of family responsibility.

Your sons would never leave a field half-plowed because the day was hot or the land was stubborn. Your daughters would not stop in the midst of feeding threshers because the kitchen was disagreeable or because their muscles ached. Whenever the demand for our effort falls within the confines of physical exertion, the fine lesson of competition is deeply ingrained in us.

Professors Want Work

Professors want, and in this respect they plead for the help and for the cooperation of parents, more than anything else on the part of college students that same capacity for work, that same willingness to try and try again in the field of intellectual attainment.

When a college class reports, every member in it, that it didn't get its assignment, that it couldn't get its assignment, and then one finds on inquiry that no more than fifteen minutes were spent by anyone in trying, what must one think of your sons and your daughters? What can you think of them?

When college men and college women are not alert enough intellectually, are not alive enough mentally, have not enough intellectual curiosity, not enough interest in the thing for which they have come here to stay physically awake through an early morning lecture, what can one say for the future of that society in which they are supposedly going to move as leaders?

Attitude Is Important

What would you think of the moral calibre of a student who refuses to work because he does not like the subject? You know and we know that the happiness of living depends on the mental attitude one brings to his task, whether it be congenial or foreign, pleasant or disagreeable, and the mind which has sought in the secondary school, and now seeks in four years of college, only that which is pleasant, easy, is ill-fitted for the sterner days ahead.

If we were to reduce the definition of a college to its briefest phrase, we must say it is an institution for learning. Its truth or its hypocrisy as an institution must be reckoned on the soundness of scholarship, on the integrity of character for which it stands. The first criterion of integrity, you will agree, is honesty. Then an institution, organized for the cultivation of the mind, can in honesty put no consideration before its intellectual program? The future of this college depends upon our devotion as professors, upon yours as parents, upon that of our students to that first principle. Physically we shall always be among the smaller colleges.

A High Enrollment

Numerically we are probably approaching a desired high in student enrollment. In buildings, in equipment, in material and social emphasis which become a part of their campaign for publicity, we can never hope to compete with institutions which are richly endowed.

But intellectually we can be honest; academically we can be sound; in scholarship we can be distinguished. In clarity of thinking, in perception of values, in courageous devotion to principle, in their willingness to unite their learning with their lives, our students may, if they so will it, be among the great of their succeeding generations.

By-Products Enter In

There are innumerable by-products which insinuate themselves into the college program. So long as we recognize them as by-products, we are safe. But the honest student, the honest professor, the honest parent must view them in relationship to the major purpose of the college. When they violate or even jeopardize that principle, they must be sacrificed to the greater good.

Let us consider the question from another angle of approach. We live in a region of corn and wheat. Those are the major crops. They represent our staples, the sources of our living. If those crops fail, our sustenance for the year is impoverished. We have many minor yields, and we enjoy them, our gardens, our flowers, our fruits. But what would you think of a farmer who sacrificed the care of his corn and his wheat to his passing pleasure in the blossoms and the fruit of his several cherry trees? Or suppose you have a farm on which the major interest is the breeding of fine stock. Young fruit trees furnish shade and coolness to the buildings. A garden shows the pleasing pattern of its straight stretching rows. And then prize stock break down the fences and injure the trees and trample the garden. Should the cattle thereupon be slaughtered? Should the program of the farm be changed?

Social training and social experience, the cultivation of warm friendships, the encouragement and the pursuit of avocational interests are the natural accompaniment of college life. We would not have it otherwise. But the first business of the college is the propagation of learning. Its first requisite is that of hard, persevering intellectual effort, and the increasing number of semi-intellectual, of semi-professional activities which accrue to our system of education confuses our thinking and threatens our life.

Professors are concerned, as parents are concerned, with the complete development of the personality of every student. But they believe that purpose can be best achieved by consistent, conscientious adherence to the purpose for which the college was established: to teach the processes of thinking, to stimulate the active curiosity of mind, to open avenues of capable approach to the problems of the present through a knowledge of the past, that ground on which alone we set our feet, that accumulation of fact which is the experience of the race.

College Processes Named

To know the past, to perceive the present, to anticipate the future, and then to translate in thought and in expressive act the learning of today into the living of today and of tomorrow, these are the processes which concern the college. If through four years of study the college man or the college woman can conceive of a future which is better than the present which he knows, if he can understand the contribution which his study, his learning, his knowledge can bring to it in terms of its amelioration, of its reforms, of its enrichment, if he will move constantly through his intellectual effort to the consummation of those ends, then the college will not have failed: then the hardships and the sacrifice and the patience by which you have made college possible for your children will be fixed forever in the progress of our race, in the record of its culture.

College Choruses Wind Up Festival Week With Concerts

Program, Under Direction of Mr. H. N. Schuster, Features Two Students

The College chorus and the a cappella choir were featured last Friday evening in the fourth and final concert presented by the College students during the annual May festival.

The program was under the direction of Mr. H. N. Schuster, voice instructor, and featured Helen Shipman of Mound City and Turner Tyson of Skidmore as soloists in the cantata.

The chorus sang "Jesus Joy of Man's Desiring" by Bach, "Who is Sylvia" by Schubert, "Sheba's Captain" by Redman, and "The Music of Life" by Cain.

The a cappella choir presented the following program of music: "Cherubim Song" by Glinka, "April is in My Mistress' Face" by Morley, "I Love All Beauteous Things" by Greenhill, "Czecho-Slovakian Dance Song," arranged by Krone, "Phillis," a German folk song and "To Maelzel" by Beethoven.

The chorus presented "Fair Ellen," a cantata by Max Bruch.

Mrs. H. N. Schuster and Marian Kerr were the accompanists.

SPEAKS AT COMMENCEMENT

Dr. O. Myking Mehus of the department of social science at the College, last Saturday afternoon spoke before the graduating class of extension students at Trenton in its commencement exercises. Following the exercises, Dr. Mehus was honored at a banquet in a Trenton restaurant.

S.T.C. Host at State Track Meet

will be several bands and drum corps from over the district.

Queens of the 1938 "Tower" will represent the different schools. After each event the winner will be presented, amid a fanfare of trumpet, to the queen representing his school and she will present his medal. The queens will preside from an especially constructed throne on the west side of the field.

Preliminaries in Morning

Preliminaries in the dash and hurdles events are scheduled to be held tomorrow morning in order that the field can be reduced to six men in each event. Finals in the discus, shotput, and javelin will also be held in the morning session.

The conference golf and tennis tournaments will start at 8:30 a.m., at the Maryville Country Club and the College tennis courts, respectively. Bowles and Hantz will represent Maryville in tennis.

Cape Doped to Win

Cape Girardeau, winner in the last three state meets, has been established the favorite on the basis of its showing at the indoor meet at Columbia in March and its outdoor record. Headed by William McLane, who won third place in the decathlon at the Kansas relays, the Southeast Teachers will place a well-rounded and capable team on the track in defense of its title. McLane has outstanding records in the five events in which he is entered. He has run the 100-yard dash in 9.9 seconds, topped twelve feet in the pole vault, leaped over 23 feet in the broad jump, and has set several records in the hurdle events.

Dope Springfield Second

Teegarden of Warrensburg will be an outstanding performer in the field events, and should win several points for his team. Springfield is especially strong in the runs. Bench, Donald, and Martin are expected by some to make a sweep of the 880, mile, and two-mile, but Mudd, Maryville, and Fort-Rolla, will give them plenty of trouble. Springfield finished second to Cape in the indoor meet, and are expected to finish in the same position tomorrow night. Warrensburg is favored, for third place with Maryville, Kirksville, and Rolla fighting it out for the last three positions.

The coaches will meet in Maryville tonight to draw up the 1938-39 basketball schedule. Tomorrow noon at a luncheon they, with officials, will make the drawings for lanes at the carnival at night.

Hubert Campbell will be the head starter of the meet.

A brain institute which will make Washington the world capital for the study of the brains of animals and humans is being established at Georgetown University.
